Day 3 - The Marmolada tower or the Queen of the Dolomites

Today, you will cycle around the Marmolada tower, also known as the Queen of the Dolomites or the highest summit of the Dolomites, which culminates at 3342m. You will also climb the magnificent Passo San Pellegrino, which will offer you magnificent views over the Monte Pelmo.

Distance: 84km.
Height gain: 2650m.
Max. altitude: 2080m.

Day 4 - La Sella Ronda, un classique des Dolomites

The Sella Ronda is a classic sight: it is the tour of the Monte Sella.
Today, you will cross the Paso Sella, a road pass which culminates at 2240m. It was twice the Cima Coppi du Giro (the highest road pass in the Giro d'Italia).

Distance: 74km.
Height gain: 1980m.
Max. altitude: 2067m.

Day 5 - The Passo du Costalunga, the Carezza Lake and Bolzano

A short and easy ride awaits you today. You will be able to visit Bolzano and Merano and to rest for a while before tomorrow's mighty challenge.

After riding along a little road pass, you will start a swooping descent before reaching your accommodation.

Distance: 68km.

Height gain: 720m.

Max. altitude: 1792m.

Day 6 - The two giants of the Dolomites

This is one of the journey's most spectacular and unforgettable rides! The two giant mountains which will tackle today are two legendary road passes of the cycling world. The Passo dello Stelvio and the Passo di Gavia are two incredible road passes where some of the fiercest battles have taken place during the Giro d'Italia. These roads have seen the most famous cyclists in the world fight for their title.

Distance: 138km.

Height gain: 4100.

Max. altitude: 2750m.
